THANKS

I want to thank the members of the Missourian Staff for the fine spirit of co-operation that they, each one, have shown since I have had charge of the paper. When called on to put out extra work the response has been more than was asked. If there has been an improvement in the Missourian it has been made possible by the efforts of a hard-working staff.

I wish also to thank the Student Body and the faculty for their aid in making the Missourian a more representative paper.

HAROLD HUMPHREY.

CONGRATULATIONS, TOWER

The Missourian staff takes this opportunity to congratulate the Tower staff on the 1933 Tower. Especially do we admire the efforts of Mr. Kreek and Mr. Yates, the editor and business manager, in their successful attempt to make this year's annual international in scope. The Cosmopolitan Issue of the Tower is an excellent book and the Missourian is proud to have it as a sister publication.

THE FOLLOWING FROM OLD MISSOURIANS

POLICY OF THIS PAPER

From this day forward the policy of this paper, while under the present management, shall be:

MAINTENANCE OF THE OPEN COLUMN FOR STUDENT USE.
ALL ARTICLES MUST BE SIGNED.

NO EDITORIALS WILL BE PUBLISHED OTHER THAN THOSE WRITTEN BY THE EDITORIAL STAFF.

OBSCENE AND IMMORAL LITERATURE WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED OR PUBLISHED.

THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF RESERVES THE RIGHT TO REJECT ANY OR ALL COPY.

LATE COPY ABSOLUTELY WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.

AND THIS FROM MR. HEEKIN—(REALLY)

COLLEGE POLITICS

The open season for the college politicians will soon be at hand and the student elections will be held. Sometimes campaigns are marred by bitterness and strife of a personal nature. The reaction from a campaign of this type is always bad for the student body as a whole and the individuals particularly. The student elections should be taken seriously but not too seriously. There will be many outstanding candidates offered for your approval and all students in the college will possess the right to vote. The right should be exercised as it is your duty to do. If students will not take an interest in their school elections what can be expected when they are given the ballot to use in their national government affairs. In the past, almost one-sixth of the student body have failed to vote at school elections. Much interest should be aroused in this campaign for candidates of outstanding ability and achievement will be nominated, many of them with definite programs of action. The students should give a careful ear to all the details of the campaign and then cast their ballot according to their conscience and their judgment. In that manner, and that manner only will the election of the best candidates follow. Students in this college must accept responsibility while there if they expect to occupy places of responsibility in life. Student government is one of these responsibilities and every one must do his part.

WILBUR HEEKIN.

ON PEACE POSTERS

One feature of the Social Science Department is rather out of step with student thought, and does not give the desired atmosphere and information. This is the display of anti-war posters which cover the walls of two rooms on the third floor. It is quite evident that students of this college are thinking in terms of peace. Surely their minds have developed to the point of not finding need, use, or desire for the pre-war type posters. In place of these placards, why not devote a shelf to informative pamphlets in substitution for the circus posters of Iron Men, death-dealing machines and even cartoons against war. If students desire this type of illustrated thought, it is only necessary to read an amazing story magazine, whereas, if good-up-to-the-minute information is needed, there is scarcely a handy source to which they can turn.

WHY NOT DISMISS ON TIME?

The Faculty can, if they wish, do much to lessen the confusion caused by students entering classes late. If they will remember that other instructors and the members of their classes are inconvenienced each time a class is held over time, they will, we hope, correct the situation immediately.

President's Column

As President of the College, I was glad to approve the proposal of the Student Senate that the Northwest Missourian be run hereafter by the students, with faculty advice. It is fortunate if the Student Body, led by their Senate, will accept more and

The "Heavenly Twins" wish their many friends a most happy summer with lots of sunburn and chiggers.—Grace Westfall and Birdie Lemaster.

The Missourian staff doesn't care whether you have a good summer or ever get back. We'd be just as busy if you didn't.

"May your vacation be the best you've ever had." Hope to see you next fall.—Sandison-Humphreys.

"Pleasant day dreams for your entire vacation."—Goode-Heathe.

"Rest up and we'll be back at you next fall."—Wilson-Bovard.

"The parting of way is 'come,' don't feel too bad about it. We'll see you in the fall."—Maxwell-Russell.

"Most pleasant tidings for the coming season."—Glenn-Dodson.

"In our own modest way we wish the best of luck for the summer."—Wooderson-Guilliams.

"You've made us what we are, so you'll have to put up with us next fall."—Morford-Cronkite.

The Patrick-Seyster team leave you their most seasonable wishes.

Miller-Mitzel wishes their many friends all the happiness and success that is possible.

"May next year be your biggest"—Whitmore-Kreek.

And of course, most of us wish the best of us a big time this summer.

A NEW FEATURE

For the first time in the history of the Missourian a short story written by a student is being run in this edition. The story is "Toiled," by Ralph Westfall. If this new feature of the Missourian meets with the approval of the students, and it is possible to obtain enough stories, this will become a weekly feature of this paper.

"TOILED"

A Short Story
By Ralph Westfall.

Dorothy New stood at the door of the big tri-motored Fokker N. C. 815. The plane was drawn up on the apron in front of the air depot at Phoenix, and loading was in progress. Dorothy was air stewardess on this plane, a job she thoroughly enjoyed.

"How do you think you're going to like the new pilot?" a waiting attendant asked.

"Oh, I forgot that he was on today. I don't know how I am going to like him; I haven't seen anything but the top of his cap. He hasn't looked out once."

"Hello," she said to an elderly lady, "May I help you?"

Having seated the old lady, Dorothy glanced up and down the cabin and saw that all but one of the twelve upholstered chairs were filled. She checked her list and found that a Mr. Harris was not aboard. "He better hurry," she said as she glanced at her wrist watch which indicated thirty seconds until six-thirty p. m., the hour of departure of the N. C. 815 for Los Angeles. At that moment a dark complexioned man, dressed in a dark suit and wearing a gray hat, approached, walking with quick, short steps. He carried a small, black, leather bag in his left hand.

"You just made it," said Dorothy as she took his ticket.

She entered the plane after the man and shut the door. An attendant took away the steps and all was ready for the take off. The big plane lumbered away from the depot down to the far end of the field, turned, and headed into the wind. Herbert Russell looked toward the station for the signal. The flag dropped and Herb pushed the three throttles forward. The plane trundled forward, gathering speed rapidly as the three Wasp motors turned the propellers faster and faster. Suddenly the riding became miraculously smooth, and they were off. The rays of the setting sun fell upon the silver plane, turning the silver into light gold.

"Would any of you care for something to eat?" asked Dorothy of the passengers. None did, having had dinner before their departure. Dorothy produced some magazines and evening papers and distributed them among the occupants of the plane. Young Mrs. Manners' baby was crying. "May I help you with your baby? Let me take her awhile while you rest. What's her name?" "Beverly," replied the mother as she gave her child to Dorothy, who went into the kitchenette and amused the child until it fell asleep.

Mr. Lawrence and his son, Bob, were returning to their home in Los Angeles, having spent the day at a rodeo in Phoenix. Bob promptly and proudly answered the old lady's question as to his age with, "I'm going on twelve." He then turned around again and sat gazing at the swiftly moving rocker arms of the right wing motor and the faint tongues of flame that spurted from the exhaust stacks into the dusk.

Harris had a seat at the rear of the cabin. From this point he had full view of the interior. On the right side, to the rear was an inconspicuous man by the name of Beck. Dorothy had been told that this man carried large amounts of money between the two cities, Phoenix and Los Angeles. He always arrived at the station with an escort of three men and at the Los Angeles airport was met by another group. Immediately after landing he entered a waiting car and was driven rapidly away. His black satchel reposed beside him in the plane now.

As air travel makes one sleepy some of the passengers yawned frequently. The old lady rang for the stewardess. Dorothy appeared carrying the baby. "Dearie," the old lady said, "will you please adjust my chair. I think that I will take a nap." Dorothy gave the sleeping child back to its mother and prepared the bunks for the passengers. Some were dozing in their chairs. Bob, having had an exciting day at the rodeo, had fallen asleep while gazing at the pin pricks of light from the few scattered autos on the highway below. Mrs. Manners snuggled her sleeping child close to her and was soon asleep herself. Dorothy smiled. Beck, not thinking of danger, closed his eyes and was soon asleep. Harris was the last one to quit reading and go to sleep or at any rate appear to sleep.

After seeing that all were at ease Dorothy turned out all but two lights and returned to the kitchenette.

"I had better make some coffee for the boys," she said to herself. "The new pilot can certainly handle a plane. I'll get a good look at him when I take the coffee up." Humming softly to herself she put the percolator on an electric stove to heat. She got two cups from the locker and set them on a tray along with some bars of chocolate. As she sat waiting for the coffee to heat she thought of the different passengers on the plane. "That Harris is a queer fellow. I wonder what he does." She soon dismissed him from her thoughts and proceeded to pour the coffee.

Suddenly the baby began to fret and she heard several excited voices. Her eyes felt queer and began to smart. "Has someone got onions around here?"

With the tray in her hand she started to find what was the matter. She stepped into the passenger compartment. Before her eyes filled with tears she saw an alarming sight. Harris had on a gas mask and was starting toward the pilot compartment. In one hand he carried a black satchel and in the other a glass vial. The cabin was filled with a gray mist. Hearing her cry Harris half turned and glared at her. Dorothy flung the hot coffee at the menacing figure. The scalding liquid fell on his neck and unprotected hands. With a yell he dropped both satchel and glass and started toward her. Dorothy groped blindly through the door into the kitchenette and rang the bell in the pilot cockpit. Both pilot and co-pilot turned and glanced back into the cabin. The co-pilot pulled his goggles from his pocket and put them on, hoping that they would fit tightly enough to prevent the tear gas from reaching his eyes. He seized a wrench from the tool kit and slipped through the small door to charge the enraged Harris. The frantic passengers hindered the co-pilot in reaching the desperado who was attempting to draw a gun with his blistered hands. The assistant managed to hit him a glancing blow on the head which stunned him.

Herb, knowing the sturdy plane would fly for several minutes "hands off" left his wheel to go back and open some windows and take some wire to truss the foiled robber. He then returned to his controls.

The air whisked the gas from the cabin in a short time. The co-pilot wired Harris securely to his seat and informed the passengers that all was well.

"You will regain sight in a little while," he said, "the gas is not dangerous."

Dorothy, who had not been severely gassed, although her eyes were red and smarting, came from the kitchenette to clean up the debris.

"Yes, Mr. Beck, your satchel is safe," she replied to his eager question.

The passengers having gotten over their fright sat waiting until their sight returned. The cool air soothed their burning eyes and after a short time they were able to see.

Dorothy made coffee for all and obtained cookies from a locker. Soon all were in a better humor. She took some coffee and cookies forward for the pilots. They did not hear her enter the control room. The co-pilot was reporting to the flying field.

"If it had not been for Miss New he would have thrown a tear bomb in here, landed the plane and escaped. Herb says he is the same fellow who flew for that outlaw gang in Mexico last year."

"I brought you some coffee."

Pardon us, we didn't hear you. Thanks a lot for the java and thanks a lot for acting so quickly awhile ago. Had he escaped it would have been a blot on our record," said Herb.

A short time later the plane landed at Los Angeles for servicing and for discharging some of the passengers. Herb came down from his cockpit and walked over to Dorothy who was leaning against a wing brace.

"Do you know who that old lady was who just got off?"

"No," Dorothy said.

"She owns a big share of the stock in this air line. She thinks you're some girl, so do I. You're off duty tomorrow night, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"There is going to be a big air picture released tomorrow night in San Francisco. Want to go?"

"Why, I'll be glad to, Herb—er—Mr. Russell."

ON SENIORS

When May rolls 'round we always think
Of graduation day.
Of Seniors marching down the aisle
Perhaps weeping on the way! (??)

All dressed in robes—(they look so hot!)
Poor kids—they're in suspense.
Such funny caps—those dangly things!
Needless "overhead expense!"

They take their seats—the music stops
The silence is oppressive.
The faculty sits near—it's odd—
They don't look so aggressive!

Someone gets up—"Let's bow our heads."
A fitting prayer is next.
The speaker of the evening squirms
And worries about his "text."

He is announced—he starts to talk
His subject is too deep.
The seniors think how long he'll be
And settle down to sleep.

He talks about the sea of life;
"Your ships have all set sail.
I hope you reach the harbor safe
With none lost in the gale."

At last he's through—he mops his brow
And breathes with ease once more.
The usual ceremony ensues
And finally all is o'er.

The graduates accept their scrolls
And march slowly down the aisle
There's something sad in seeing them
Recede in single file.

The Seniors gone! What will we do?
We'll miss each "beaming face."
The Juniors will be there in name
But none can take their place!

—Helen E. Kramer.

THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN

BEARCATS LOSE TO THE AGGIE NINE LAST WEEK

KANSAS AGGIES REPAY AN EARLY SEASON DEFEAT AT TEACH-ERS HANDS.

BY SCORE OF 12-4

Bearcats Use Three Pitchers In Attempt to Stop the Aggie Drive.

The bludgeons of the Kansas State baseball team were swung with telling effect Tuesday afternoon as the State players blasted the offerings of three Maryville Teacher pitchers for 17 hits to win the contest 13 to 4. E. L. Simms pitching for State was touched for eight hits.

At least three Kansas State players fattened their batting average Tuesday. John Underwood, who led the hitting, connected for five hits in five trips to the plate. Captain M. L. Carter stepped to the plate five times and hit safely four times. One of his drives went for four bases with one runner on base at the time. James LeClere got two hits in four trips to the plate, one of his going for two bases.

Hodgkinson led the hitting of the visitors with three hits in four trips to the plate. He hit a three bagger, and a two bagger. Mann hit two two baggers in three trips to the plate. O'Connor hit safely twice in four times at bat. One of his was good for four bases with one runner on second.

The right arm of Mann of the visitors came out of its socket at the shoulder while he was trying to field a grounder and he had to leave the game. The arm was shoved back into place, but came out and he had to be taken to a doctor to have it taped in place.

Bus Boyd's catch of Parker's long hit to right field in the third inning was one of the high points of the game. Bus had his back to the fence when he put his glove hand high in the air to capture the drive before it went over the fence.

The game closed with Carter, LeClere and Underwood completing a double play.

Maryville got to Simms for three hits and three runs in the first inning. Hodgkin, the second batter, tripled. Mann, the fourth batter, hit for two bases and O'Connor connected for his home run into left field.

State scored first in the second frame. Underwood singled, stole second and scored on Simms' double.

EXCHANGES

Park College Faculty group has decided that publication of the "Narva" school annual will be discontinued for 1933-34. The same group also ruled that all publication officers must have a "B" average.

Park students have already petitioned the faculty to reconsider the publishing of the "Narva."

Maryville S. T. C., has been lucky along that line so here's to the 1933-34 "Narva."

The Park Stylus in a startling headline announces the opening of a beer garden at the regular meeting of the Faustian Society. A musical program is planned. (The beverage will be root beer).

Margaret Verink of the Southwest Standard, winner in the state for her column Pot-pourri, says, "It was easy for us to believe the N. Y. Columnist who revealed that Amelia Earhart combs her hair by running her fingers through it. Although we like the girl who flies for 'the fun of it' her hair always reminded us of a damp alre-dale."

The Southwest Standard gives a Deep, Dirty Dig to Walter Hitchcock who came back from the Journalism meeting at Columbia with a skinned head—"Didn't know that the table had a middle leg."

I see by the Drury Mirror that tickets for Mother's Day were 35 cents. Guess I'll go to Drury. Look at the money I'd save next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Pettigrew, graduates of the College, were at the Administration Building, Tuesday of this week. Mr. Pettigrew, who has been serving as superintendent of schools at Darlington, has recently been elected superintendent of schools at Martinsville. Mrs. Pettigrew, who before her marriage was Irene Pence, finished her degree at the College in 1926 and Mr. Pettigrew completed his work in 1928.

ALUMNI

Reservations for the Alumni Association Dinner which is to be held at Residence Hall, Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock, must be made by 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, May 24.

All those who plan to attend should notify the Secretary of the Association, in room 212, in order that the definite dinner arrangements can be made.

At this dinner, Miss Hettie M. Anthony, chairman of the Home Economics Department of the College for the last twenty-five years is to be honored. Special reunion activities for the College classes of 1913 and 1923 have also been arranged, as a part of the interesting program which has been arranged.

The "menu" sounds "Grand!" Don't miss this dinner and program.

THANKS

"We want to thank the students and faculty for their support this year on the field and court. We have enjoyed our work on the Bearcat teams and are proud to have captained some of them this year. We wish Maryville the best that can be forthcoming in all competition in the future. S. T. C. has two fine coaches and we hope that your support will continue to grow behind their teams."

OVER FOURTEEN MILES OF PAPER USED BY MITZEL

MIMEOGRAPH DEPARTMENT SETS
NEW RECORD THIS QUARTER.

157 REAMS OF PAPER

Same Amount of Crank Turning Would Wind Over A Million
Clocks.

An interesting fact was called to our attention last week is that Ray Mitzel, who mimeographs all work for the faculty, set a new record this with a total of 35,100 copies. This first quarter this year he ran off 22,130 copies. During the winter quarter the number reached only 21,560. This makes a total of 78,781 impressions turned out this year by Mitzel. The drive shaft of his machine must turn twice in order to turn the cylinder once, thus in this season's printing there have been at least 157,502 revolutions of the drive shaft.

Upon investigation we were able to ascertain that each piece of paper averaged about twelve inches in length. This being a fact Mitzel actually ran 14 and nine-tenths miles of paper through the mimeograph machine.

By adding and subtracting, multiplying and dividing we are able to tell you that had Ray spoiled every 15th and 32nd sheet of paper with a mistake he would have had to throw away 7711 sheets of paper or 1 and two-fifths miles. If he used one pint of ink to every 1,000 sheets at the cost of 40 cents per pint, the ink bill would have been—$3,939.20. And if the legislature had been handed an ink bill for that amount there would have been lots of blue air and who could blame them? But there wasn't any such bill and the legislature is not in session and it doesn't take a pint of ink to every thousand sheets.

Now if Mitzel broke a finger nail trying to fix the machine every time it—who cares? Finger nails don't grow that fast.

The Stroller

And Clyde Sparks and Pauline Rush have been seen obviously holding hands. The editor confided to the Stroller that it looked as if his staff were going to the "bow-wows."

The Business Manager of the Tower seems to have survived the five rolls and all else that he ate at the Mother's Day banquet.

The Stroller has been standing ready to defend Russel Noblet from harm at Residence hall if the girls rise up against him. It must have taken courage to declare that they all—or almost all—had shining faces at breakfast.

Which reminds the Stroller that Noblet no more has to wait at the front door of the dorm for Johnson. The Stroller saw her waiting at the back door the other night for Russell. The Stroller doesn't know just who made the date or who paid for the cab (if there was one) but at last man has come into his own. Woman has been subdued. The Stroller is greatly indebted to Mr. Noblet for having made such an advancement in the rights of man and from now on the women will do the "wait till I powder my nose suffering and we harsh men will take an extra fifteen minutes to tie our shoes, fasten our garters or something equally as difficult.

The Stroller bids you goodbye for a while.

The Stroller was glad that he did not go to sleep in assembly last week as Dr. Collins advised. If he had, he would have missed seeing Mr. Cooper enjoy his nap.

The Better Shows

Tivoli

Tonight and Thursday:

As an added attraction tonight and Thursday the Tivoli management has arranged for a presentation of a Minstrel show. From the long mustached master of ceremonies to the blaring trumpet of the end man it will be typically "big time" stuff. Be sure and see this one for a real laugh.

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 28, 29 and 30, "Sweepings."

The escapade of three heirs of a multi-millionaire who chose to buy love and pleasure and cynically scouted the existence of anything worth while, are daringly portrayed in RKO-Radio Pictures' "Sweepings."

Lionel Barrymore has the central role, assisted by a cast of fifteen noted feature players. John Cromwell directed.

Wednesday and Thursday, May 31 and June 1.

"Lucky Dog," the sensational story of the devotion which exists between a man and his dog, is one of the finest cleanest pictures to be produced in many a moon, and is bound to appeal to every man, woman and child.

Friday and Saturday, June 2 and 3 Tom Mix faces plenty of villains in his latest starring vehicle for Universal, "The Rustlers' Round-up." It's one of the fastest moving pictures in which he has been seen.

The list of his opposition includes Douglas Dumbrille, the despicable "heavy" of Universal's "Laughter in Hell," Roy Stewart, who has been up to screen chicanery for twenty years, Sidney Bracy, Frank Lackteen, Nelson McDowell and Bud Osborne. The battle to the finish between Tom and Dumbrille is an action classic, it is said.

To My Public

Dear Public:

Here we are at the end of this year's grind. Lots has been accomplished and many things have failed but all in all the year has been a successful one. In this issue the staff has tried to compile the major items of the year in their original form as they appeared in the Missourian. With this, the "Going Home" addition, I wish you the best of luck for the summer and hope sincerely that you will be back next fall. I have tried to make this paper as nearly a record of the "Missourian History" as possible, for this year. I am sorry that there are not more issues in which I could bring you the inside story and news of the latest "love affairs," breaks, slips, etc. You must bear up this summer in hopes that I can store up enough "dope" to supply you through the coming winter.

Sunburningly yours,
Humps.
